

ANOTHER OLD 69TH MAN DIES IN ACTION

News of Death of Timothy Donnellan Comes by Mail and Telegraph.

LIEUT. FARNUM WOUNDED

Two Y. M. C. A. Workers Asphyxiated While Aiding Wounded Near Front.

Of the fifty-seven men named in Gen. Pershing's casualty list yesterday six were from New York City and its environs, one of them being a commissioned officer and the remainder privates. Three of them made the supreme sacrifice, one, a member of the 165th Infantry, forfeiting his life in action and the two others dying of wounds received in a previous engagement. Another man reported missing some time ago was mentioned in the list as having returned to duty.

The commissioned officer is Lieut. Lee V. Farnum, who was reported as seriously wounded in action on May 12. He was a graduate of the Plattsburg Training Camp. He lived at the Hotel Judson, Washington Square. His home is now with relatives in Stamford, Conn. The notice of his having been wounded was received by George E. Sturrock of the firm of George H. Sturrock & Co., 421 Broadway, where Lieut. Farnum was employed up to the time he left for Plattsburg last summer. Mr. Sturrock relayed the news to Mrs. Farnum. Lieut. Farnum is 32 years old. He left for France in January with an infantry regiment, but according to the official report he was injured while serving with the engineers. During his course at Plattsburg last summer he paid a flying trip to this city to marry Miss Lillian Kendall.

One of the Old 69th.
Private Timothy Donnellan, 22 years old, who came to this country two years from Ireland and enlisted in the Sixty-ninth New York Infantry immediately upon this country's entrance into the war, was killed in action. He was a machinist by trade and married with his wife, Mrs. Della Loonan, 421 East 157th street.

Only yesterday morning, but a few hours before the arrival of the official telegram from Washington informing her of her brother's death, Mrs. Loonan received two letters, one of them written to her by her brother on April 28. In this letter Private Donnellan informed his sister that he was in the best of health and anxious for a whack at the enemy. The accompanying letter told a sad story, however. It was from Donnellan's "bunkie," Private Patrick O'Keefe, and read:

"I am sorry to inform you that Tim was killed in action. He fought like a hero and died at his post. Timothy's corporal assisted him, but they were both overpowered by superior forces. He died a hero's death and was buried in a beautiful cemetery with other gallant heroes from the old Sixty-ninth. "We are all prepared to meet our Maker," concluded Private O'Keefe's letter.

Brooklyn Boy Dies of Wounds.
Mrs. Mary McNeary of 479 Warren street, Brooklyn, received an official telegram from Washington yesterday morning informing her that her youngest son, Harold J. McNeary, had died of wounds. Harold had been in the front line when the postman's whistle announced the arrival of a letter written to Mrs. McNeary by her son on May 6 from a Red Cross hospital. Mrs. McNeary wrote that he was feeling fine and that his life had been saved by the skill and kindness of the Red Cross nurses. Apparently, however, he knew that his wounds were serious, for he closed his letter with the statement that he would not return to the service, but expected to be back home again as soon as he was strong enough to be moved. He enlisted in 1916 and saw service on the Mexican border.

Private Frank Rogers of 400 Grand street, Jersey City, reported as slightly wounded in action, was one of the first 100 drafted men sent to Camp Dix from Jersey City. He sailed for France the latter part of January as a member of Company C, Eighteenth Infantry, to which he had been transferred from the National Army. He lived with his sister, Mrs. Helen Dempsey and Miss Mary Rogers.

Was Hit by a Shell.
Mrs. Rose Kane of 333 Forty-third street, Brooklyn, received the cheering information yesterday that her brother, Private William Cooligan of the Sixth Engineers, who was reported missing in action on March 29, had returned to his home on April 16. After he had been listed among the missing Mrs. Kane, with whom he lived up to the time of his enlistment, received two letters written by him from a British field hospital.

"Tell me that I got a couple of his countrymen before they got me, and that I hope to get a couple more when I get out," he wrote in one letter. In the other he said:

"I am in a British hospital after being blown up by a shell the day after I wrote that last letter. I have been in the hospital twelve days and my fever has reached as high as 110. The shell burst five yards away from me and then I didn't remember anything. I have been talking with a German prisoner, and he is sick of war and that Germany is making her last stand. The men of our regiment fought like heroes. Our officers are proud of us."

Private William C. Carroll of 440 First avenue, Elizabeth, N. J., was killed among those who had died of wounds.
Y. M. C. A. Workers Asphyxiated.
Confirmation was also received yesterday of the death in France of Halliday S. Smith of Nyack and Hedley H. Cooper of Piermont, both Y. M. C. A. secretaries, who were asphyxiated during a heavy bombardment last Sunday night in which gas shells were liberally used by the Germans. The two men were at work with twenty-eight other Red Triangle men in a front line dug-out aiding the wounded. They refused to leave the injured soldiers when the gas shells began falling, and both died later in the hospital.
Mr. Cooper was a clergyman and was born and educated in Michigan. He was 31 years old and unmarried. At the outbreak of the war he resigned his place as rector of St. Christopher's Episcopal Church, Oak Park, Ill., and came to this city, expecting to be appointed a chaplain in the army. Being unable to get into the army he then became chaplain of the Seventy-first Regiment, New York Guard. He was later chosen by the Y. M. C. A. War Work Council and was sent to France on February 1.
Halliday Smith, formerly a clerk in the Union Square Savings Bank, was formerly a member of the Seventh New York Infantry, but was disqualified for federal service because of an injured shoulder. He then applied for admission to the Naval Reserve force, but was rejected on the same ground. Determined to serve his country in some way, he enlisted as a Y. M. C. A. war worker. He was born in East Orange, N. J., and was the son of Spencer C. Smith. He was 32 years old.

PITTSBURG RAIL CONGESTION ENDS

Steel Mills Now Getting Normal
Service—Smith's Work Praised.

The railroad congestion that became severe in March in the Pittsburgh steel district and resulted in piling up $60,000 tons of finished steel for which there was no transportation has been cleared. It was announced yesterday from the office of Regional Director A. H. Smith.

A. C. Young of the traffic committee of the American Iron and Steel Institute has sent a letter giving credit to Mr. Smith and to the railroads of the Eastern division for helping pull the steel district through the crisis. Mr. Young said the improvement in railroad handling of raw materials and finished products has restored the situation to normal. "Practically all the available blast furnaces east of the Chicago district are in operation," he wrote. "While there are a few furnaces still idle, due to repairs for necessary repairs, it is expected that the greater number of these will be ready to resume in a short time."

"Very little steel remains at the mills because of the shortage of cars and the amount reported holding on account of embargoes shows a marked reduction." A statement issued in connection with the clearance announcement said: "Demands for steel in war industries, for shipbuilding, munitions and other supplies both for the transportation of our allies have been for greater quantity than ever before in history. Supplying them has involved rapid and continuous movement by the railroads of greater tonnage of ore, coal, coke and also of the finished steel products away from the mills."

"As indicating the extent of the improvement it may be stated that on March 1 last there were approximately 50,000 tons of finished steel piled up at the plants awaiting shipment, while at present there is more nominal quantity, which is held by embargo and not because of lack of car supply. "On February 1 both the blast furnace production and the by-product coke production ranged from 60 to 70 per cent of capacity, and this has been brought up to normal. On this date more than 100 of the 300 blast furnaces were out of service, and now all of these have been put into blast except a few undergoing repairs. None are idle because of lack of transportation."

Mr. Smith transmitted Mr. Young's letter to his assistants in the railroad management, adding a personal note of appreciation for their cooperation. "No one understands better than I do the difficulties with which you have been confronted," he said. "The past winter has been one of the most trying in the history of American railroads. "The work of the officers and men, who by their cooperation, devotion to duty and untiring efforts contributed so fully in meeting the situation not only for the steel and iron industry but for the other vital necessities of the nation, merits the highest commendation."

MRS. BOSLER SUES HUSBAND.
Woman Lawyer Seeks Divorce From Prosecutor's Aid.
Henry D. Bosler, former Assistant District Attorney, was sued in the Supreme Court yesterday for an absolute divorce by Frieda Thomas Bosler, who herself practices law under the name of Frieda Thomas. The papers in the case were sealed.

The marital troubles of the Boslers first came before the Supreme Court a few months ago when the husband, through a writ of habeas corpus, sought to obtain possession of their two children. Mrs. Bosler was arrested in the West Side court Friday, charged with having struck a detective in the face. She was yesterday paroled in her own custody for examination Wednesday.
